

ARREST WARRANT

A number of Conservative backbenchers are expected to oppose the government when voting on European Arrest Warrant laws this afternoon.

Coalition supporters say that criminals could easily enter the country without it but others say some could become victims of miscarriages of justice.

KIDNEY TRANSPLANT

A court has heard how kidney transplants went ahead on two patients even though doctors knew the donor was an alcoholic who had died from meningitis.

The families of the men, who later died, were told at the inquest that the kidneys had been called 'unfit' by other hospitals, but the University Hospital of Wales went ahead with the operation.
